Dear SOHA members:

We write our last column as Co-Presidents hoping you are doing well and carrying on your endeavors as oral historians, community activists, scholars, students, and active members of society. On what is for us a bittersweet occasion, we believe that all of our work and efforts remain more important than ever as our society struggles with the mounting misinformation that produces racial and gender intolerance and inequality, xenophobia, and extremist and violent behaviors. We find ourselves in what is possibly the most politically divided era since the U.S. Civil War; your efforts help bridge the information and historical gaps that maintain an informed populace while growing the knowledge base. We stand with you as you continue your work in the field of oral history and in your communities.

And we hope to see many of you in person in Salt Lake City in October. SOHA is actively engaged in helping to plan and promote the Oral History Association (OHA) 2019 conference, to be held October 16 through 20 at the Sheraton Salt Lake City Hotel. When the SOHA Board agreed to be a top sponsor at OHA 2019, we decided to forego our own annual conference this year*. Instead, similarly to the OHA 2016 conference in Long Beach, SOHA-labeled sessions will help fill the conference program. SOHA also will present our Annual Mink Award and introduce our 2019 Scholarship and Mini-Grant recipients on Saturday October 19, 2019 at a dinner reception at the conference.

As an added benefit, SOHA members can register for OHA 2019 at discounted rates. To do so follow this link:

https://www.oralhistory.org/oha-conference-registration-for-soha-members/

In closing, we want to thank you for your support during the past two years of our co-presidency. We have been humbled to have such great honor and responsibility bestowed upon us. As Past Presidents starting July 1, we will continue to support SOHA’s endeavors and dedicate ourselves to the expansion of oral history. Please continue to support SOHA and its new leadership.

See you soon,

Juan D. Coronado
Marcia M. Gallo

*We are making plans now for our 2020 SOHA Annual Conference, which likely will be held in Las Vegas in March. Please contact SOHA if you would like to join the Planning Committee, suggest speakers, or help with publicity.
Community Celebration

by Jennifer Keil, 1st Vice President

COPH specializes in offering public history applications to the spoken word. The undergraduate and graduate classes are provided with field work opportunities. Often, courses are scheduled in advance for said exhibition opportunities such as the community history class that will capture women’s suffrage movement memories. Dr. Brown-Cornel is coordinating these interviews for the future exhibit at CSUF. COPH Director Dr. Benjamin Cawthra will be instructing a public history practicum class that will curate the interview from labels to installation for the suffrage centennial at the Fullerton Arboretum opening in August 2020. As a new inductee into the History Department Alumni Council, I hope to coordinate program internships, encourage conference attendance, and fundraise scholarship opportunities for students so they can receive additional archival experiences.

COPH was instrumental to the success of SOHA’s 2018 conference which was held in Fullerton, CA. We are currently working with COPH Director, Dr. Natalie Fousekis, the OHA President on the 2019 joint conference in Salt Lake City. If you are looking for an opportunity to participate in the 2019 program, please consider submitting a poster. I am serving on the conference marketing committee. Please use #OHA2019 and #SOHAatOHAC2019 on all social media platforms. We would like to increase our network and connect with more practitioners in the field.

The Consulate General of the Republic of Korea in Los Angeles celebrated the centennial of the Korean Declaration of Independence in Seoul on March 1st, 1919. The liberation movement took place when thousands of Koreans rose up in protest against Japanese colonial rule. The consulates office, USC Library, and 70 Degrees hosted an oral history session with the descendants of the pioneers. We met at the Korean National Association in Los Angeles, which was a central meeting location to establish the provisional government. These interviews will be made available via the USC Digital Library. Dr. Sunmin Park and I will be presenting these oral histories at the 2019 OHA conference with Dr. Rosas, a UCI Chicano Studies Professor. I have been working with Dr. Rosas on an archival website and publication.

Please let us know how you’d like to collaborate with us at future meetings or organize a regional workshop. Visit the SOHA Blog, sohanews.wordpress.com, and our social media accounts (@southwestoha) for regional activities.

CSU, Fullerton university president Framroze Virjee at the 50th COPH Reception

We celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Lawrence de Graff Center for Oral and Public History in May. It was an occasion to recognize the pioneering work of university historian Larry de Graff and Arthur A. Hansen. I had the opportunity to participate in the oral history panel that included former students, narrators, and project directors. The session was titled, “Talking Back: 50 Years of Oral History” followed by “Open History: Public Project Past and Future.” CSU Fullerton university president, Framroze Virjee, provided welcoming remarks at the Golleher Alumni House.

Community Connections through Oral History

by Farina King, 2nd Vice President

Thanks to the support of various organizations including the Southwest Oral History Association, Utah Humanities, Utah State Historical Society, Charles Redd Center for Western Studies, and Northeastern State University Faculty Research Committee, I have traveled throughout the Southwest and Navajo Nation to conduct interviews and work with narrators to develop oral histories about the Intermountain Indian Boarding School. I have strengthened networks and collaborations to continue the project and the related traveling exhibit and forthcoming book about Intermountain Indian student experiences especially for accessibility and engagement with Navajo communities.

The research and oral histories will be featured in a book, which I am co-authoring, tentatively titled “Returning Home: Navajo Creative Works of the Intermountain Indian School,” with Dr. Mike Taylor and Dr. James Swensen. We are highlighting the creative works and stories of Navajo student at the Intermountain Indian School. Dr. Mike Taylor will be assessing the students’ creative writing such as poetry, and Dr. James Swensen examines the artworks of students. I am drafting the historical context and overarching narrative of the book. We are also launching a traveling exhibit of the Navajo Intermountain students’ stories, creative writing, and art. It started in April 2019 in the Brigham Young University library. We then developed a special traveling presentation about this work for Navajo communities, which we began in May 2019 at the Tse’bi’nidzisgai Elementary School in Monument Valley, Utah. It was an honor and joy to visit with descendants of former boarding school students, Intermountain Indian School alumni, and community in the beautiful lands of Diné Bikéyah. One of the former boarding school students and an oral history narrator, Jesse Holiday, met with us and the elementary school children to share stories of how art “pulled him out” of his struggles during boarding school.

Holiday eventually returned home to Monument Valley to become an art instructor, teaching silversmithing and traditional arts as well as more contemporary styles. Children loved to visit with us and Holiday, showing us proudly their own drawings and depictions of their home in Monument Valley.

The main exhibit of the “Returning Home Intermountain Student Art and Poetry, 1951-1984” will travel to the Gallup Cultural Center and the Navajo Nation Museum in fall 2019. The oral histories will be featured in the exhibit and book. Navajo communities and Intermountain alumni explicitly requested that we write a book based on this work. Look out for updates!

Adventures Await for OHA-SOHA 2019 Conference

I have appreciated the opportunity to serve as the Local Arrangements Co-Chair with Jed Rogers of the Utah Division of State History for the upcoming Oral History Association and Southwestern Oral History Association conference in Salt Lake City, October 16-20, 2019. We have a great line-up of activities and tours to join as part of the conference. In honor of the centennial celebrating the ratification of the 19th Amendment and recognition of the 150th anniversary since Utahn women first cast their ballots in the state, come follow the non-profit Better Days 2020 led-tour of women’s suffrage sites in Salt Lake City. In another tour option, enjoy a rare opportunity to meet with the Church History Library Director and Chair of the Oral History Working Group for some behind-the-scenes experiences and insights about the vast collections, including many oral history projects, of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (also known as Mormons). Visit and trace histories of injustices and perseverance at one of the infamous Japanese-American internment camp sites, Topaz, where 11,212 men, women, and children were forced to pass through and live surrounded by barbed wire and armed guards between September 11, 1942 to October 31, 1945. Explore the largest island of the Great Salt Lake at Antelope Island State Park and the historic Fielding-Garr Ranch to immerse yourself in the dramatic landscapes of the largest salt water lake in the Western Hemisphere. Please be sure to review these different tours and activities online at https://www.oralhistory.org/annual-meeting-tours-and-events. Sign up before the availabilities are taken! Register and spread the word for the conference as soon as possible. Go to https://www.oralhistory.org/annual-meeting-registration.
We have sought to reach out to community and recognize Indigenous and diverse peoples of Utah and the Salt Lake City region. I am also working on a special session, tentatively titled, “Frybread Stories,” to bring in frybread makers to the conference to talk about the stories and meanings of making frybread and tortillas to southwestern tribal nations, especially Navajos. Attendees will have an opportunity to practice and make frybread, while listening to how stories and songs are shared in the process.

We acknowledge that the OHA-SOHA meeting will be held on the traditional lands of Indigenous peoples, who have stewarded the land across countless generations long before the state of Utah was established. According to the Utah Division of Indian Affairs, “Utah is home to eight distinct tribal nations, each with a unique heritage that can be found among the state’s many sacred places, and [their lands] expand across Colorado, Arizona, and Nevada”: The eight tribal nations include the Confederated Tribes of Goshute, the Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah, the San Juan Southern Paiute Tribe, the Northwestern Band of Shoshone Nation, the Skull Valley Band of Goshute, the Ute Indian Tribe of the Uintah and Ouray Reservation, the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe, the White Mesa Community, and the Navajo Nation. The Salt Lake Valley is the ancestral homeland of many of these peoples. Many diverse peoples have converged there since time immemorial, including but not limited to Ute, Shoshone, and Goshute peoples, whose lives have intersected in the valley. We seek to pay respect to elders and ancestors both past and present as we meet on their homelands for the upcoming meeting. We encourage everyone to learn about the beautiful region of Utah, the conference, and the many great opportunities ahead with the OHA-SOHA 2019 conference there.

OHA Call for Posters

The Oral History Association is now accepting submissions for a poster session and project bazaar that will be held at the OHA Conference at the Sheraton Salt Lake City Hotel in Salt Lake City, Utah. Proposals addressing the meeting theme, “Pathways in the Field: Considerations for those Working In, On, and Around Oral History” are most welcome, but any timely subject of interest to oral history will be considered. Posters are often used to showcase a completed project, or to communicate ideas about research in progress. The online submission portal is available here. The final deadline for submissions is July 8, 2019, but submitters will be notified on a rolling basis.
Thank you, SOHA!

by Stefani Evans, Nevada Delegate

Thank you for allowing me the great privilege of serving as SOHA’s Nevada Delegate this past academic year. I have enjoyed networking with other oral history practitioners throughout Southern Nevada, learning how they capture the memories of the people and places in their areas, and introducing them to SOHA.

I want to introduce and thank Rodrigo Vazquez, who has graciously and enthusiastically agreed to serve as SOHA’s next Nevada Delegate. Rodrigo recently graduated from UNLV with a double major in Economics and English and begins his M.A. program in Economics in the fall. He looks forward to learning more about the oral history projects in the places in and around Southern Nevada.

Under the capable guidance of Barbara Tabach, Rodrigo has collected several oral histories as a Latinx Voices team member, and he plans to continue working on the project through the summer and into the next academic year. You will not regret asking Rodrigo about the project means to him. TIP: If you and Rodrigo are both enjoying a Mexican meal when you ask him about the Latinx Voices project, do make sure the restaurant serves fresh—not canned—refried beans.

Updates from Nevada

by Rodrigo Vazquez, Nevada Delegate

Hello. I am excited for a more active role in SOHA and look forward to meeting you all in October. I am a firm believer in the power of storytelling, and the transformative qualities that it can have on an individual and on society as a whole. I have witnessed firsthand how stories have a power that cut across cultures and generations.

The Latinx Voices of Southern Nevada team was invited to the Latino Leaders Luncheon Series that was held in Las Vegas on March 15, 2019. The stories of success and perseverance shared by business owners and community leaders at the Luncheon celebrated the strides that made by the entire Latinx community. It was Latinx Voices of Southern Nevada team member Marcela Rodriguez-Ocampo, however, whose story resonated with the entire room. She presented on the power and importance of oral histories, and their importance in keeping history and culture alive. I will continue to work towards collecting and protecting oral histories, and I look forward to hearing all of the stories that you have to tell.

Claytee White receives Nevada Humanities Award

In April, Claytee D. White was awarded Nevada Humanities’s Judith Winzeler Award for Excellence in Humanities. Present in the audience was Judith Winzeler to whom Claytee directed much gratitude. For it was under Judith’s tenure as Executive Director of Nevada Humanities that Claytee garnered multiple grants to jumpstart the Oral History Research Center at UNLV starting in 2003. As Claytee explained, Judith finally had to point out to her that Nevada Humanities could not fund all her oral history projects. To which Claytee flashed her winning smile.

Recognizing Claytee included her years of developing the OHRC and becoming integral to the Las Vegas community in a rash of ways. She currently chairs the board of the City of Las Vegas Historic Preservation Commission, where she pushes the city to bring the diverse people in Las Vegas to come together to make decisions about their neighborhood.

Requests for Claytee to lend her expertise for a documentary or classroom project, to serve on a committee, and to moderate community discussion panels increases every year. In addition to her resume of that includes hundreds, if not thousands of oral histories, the award recognized Claytee’s tirelessness in leading by example for the field of oral history.

The Oral History Research Center and UNLV’s Special Collections and Archives at UNLV Libraries were delighted to share in the evening with Claytee as she accepted. Attending the awards dinner with fellow co-workers Stefani Evans and Barbara Tabach, and Maggie Farrell, Dean of UNLV Libraries.
Tribute to a Friend of SOHA, Wayne Pomeroy

by Sarah Moorhead, Former SOHA President

Wayne Pomeroy passed away on April 10, 2019 at the age of 96. Although he was never able to attend a SOHA conference due to health problems, Wayne Pomeroy was a generous friend to SOHA. His first contribution was to sponsor Juan Coronado to attend the SOHA 2014 conference. Wayne was a Silver Star and Purple Heart medal earner and a genuine hero during WWII, and since Juan’s presentation was on Latino prisoners of war during the Vietnam War, they had an immediate connection. Juan later took a leadership role, becoming co-president of SOHA.

Wayne and Juan were able to meet when Juan was in the Tempe area for the SOHA 2017 conference. Wayne continued to make donations to the SOHA conferences for several years, as his contribution to oral history.

Wayne was descended from one of the four families who led the Mesa Company which founded the City of Mesa, Arizona in 1878. Except for his WWII service and rehabilitation, college and graduate school years, he spent his whole life in Mesa. He founded and ran a successful men’s clothing and missionary apparel store and was elected to the Mesa City Council. Wayne became Mayor during the U.S. and Mesa’s centennials, from 1976-1980. He was one of Mesa’s most progressive mayors, constructing several buildings, including a large community center and a water treatment plant, as well as encouraging the opening of a children’s museum. Wayne engaged the public through initiating City advisory boards and a mayor’s youth program, among other accomplishments. Mesa was recognized as an All-American City during his tenure.

When he was reappointed to the City Council in the 1990’s, he ensured staffing for the Mesa Room, the local history room in the library. Fifteen years later, Wayne’s oral history, which lasted seven sessions, joined the Mesa Room’s oral history collection.

Wayne was an uplifting presence until his passing at his home.

Columbine. Orlando. Newtown. San Bernardino. Las Vegas. Parkland. Virginia Tech. Christchurch. Pittsburgh. Virginia Beach. These places have forever been scarred by sudden violence. They also have bonded through their collective grief and are quick to share resources with the next place so affected.

The Las Vegas event in 2017 took place at an outdoor concert on casino property; many attendees and deceased were not local residents. Where could they and their families gather with the community to mourn and heal? Two landscape architects and the City of Las Vegas provided the answer: we would create a healing garden in downtown Las Vegas.

The Oral History Research Center at UNLV University Libraries is partnering with Get Outdoors Nevada and the City of Las Vegas to produce a book on the Las Vegas Community Healing Garden—one city’s response to mass tragedy.

Healing Garden Book

By Stefani Evans
After briefly describing the event that took fifty-eight lives, injured nearly 900 people, and permanently changed the lives of thousands the book tells how the garden came to be and speaks to the many ways people heal.

Oral histories collected by Claytee D. White and Barbara Tabach through the Remembering 1 October oral history project—of bereaved family and friends, concert attendees, first responders, community volunteers, and others—provide the quotes that give the book its humanity. Powerful images from the garden grace nearly every page, and short themed essays of love, hope, joy, life, and peace provide structure.

Co-editors Stefani Evans and Donna McAlee have just completed the book for the University of Nevada Press; it will be available in September 2019, in time for the second anniversary of the shooting. Among others, SOHA members Claytee (“Love”), Barbara (“Hope”), and Stefani (“Peace”) each penned a themed essay.

This contemplative book, Healing Las Vegas, is meant to be opened at random and consumed as needed by the reader—one quote, one page, one section, or one chapter at a time. Proceeds benefit Get Outdoors Nevada, which keeps the fifty-eight grieving families close, coordinates onsite events, and maintains the Las Vegas Community Healing Garden.
